

words: penny cowell

It's the central water feature at the front of this Main Beach home that makes the biggest statement.

The traffic stopper runs vertically down the middle of the building, contains six panels of glass and illuminates beautifully at night.

The designer of the villa pair, Stobhan Pearson, always had an eye for detail, finishing first in fine art in high school and going on to build her successful company, Brentnall Great Australian Homes, with husband Darby.

"The beauty of the building and design vocation is you can never stop learning," she says.

The magnificent villas have luxurious finishes and features, including a lift to all levels, polished limestone floors, marble kitchens and security and sound systems that can be operated from anywhere in the house.

For those wanting to indulge in luxurious pampering there is even a massive spa on the roof.

